LOCAL NEWS.

Brief Mention.

A farm wanted—R. E. Baldwin.
High water to-day at 6:31 p. m.

Sarah E. Early of Spring street is back from Lake Mahopac.

Charles W. Brennan of Redfield street has returned to Hatfield, Alleghany, N. Y., to resume his studies.

Miss Fannie E. and Miss Ursula P. Palmer of 336 George street have gone for a month's visit up the Mohawk valley.

Miss Anna Daley of Washington street, sister of Thomas Daley, the well known actor, has returned home from a two weeks' vacation spent in Brooklyn.

Patrolman James Reynolds is still confined to his house suffering from hay fever, and his beat at the Union depot is being covered by Patrolman John H. Moore.

Dr. Stephen P. Hubbard of this city met with quite a serious accident at the Hillhurst in Norfolk, Conn., Wednesday. While going down stairs he slipped and fell down the whole flight.

The Burgess Fur & Hat Co. are busy selling fall style hats, including the world famous Knox, for which they are sole agents here. Ladies, have your fur garments put in order now and save money; and you can buy fur shoulder capes cheaper now than later on.

Yesterday's Hartford Post says: W. L. Talcott, formerly of the City hotel, Hartford, has purchased an interest in the Monopole, New Haven's well known hostelry and will take charge immediately. Jack Dunn, the former proprietor, has just failed, but will continue in part control.

Delegates from the different Odd Fellows lodges in the state met in this city yesterday and voted to hold their annual encampment in Waterbury on October 15. It was to have been held in Meriden, but Waterbury was selected, as on that date the new I. O. O. F. building there will be dedicated.

The Connecticut representatives to the Sovereign Grand lodge of Odd Fellows will leave for Atlantic City to-day. A handsome badge of white, with inscription in red, has the coat of arms of the state and this query: "The Nutmeg State; Where Will You Find a Grater?" A nutmeg is suspended from the badge. The representatives also have personal cards bearing a half-tone cut of the five men grouped.

Dedication Exercises.

To-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock the dedication of the new synagogue of the congregation B'nai Scholom on Olive street will take place with impressive exercises.

"The Put."

A member writes: Last evening Israel Putnam lodge No. 31, A. O. U. W., initiated four new members and received four applications. The membership of this lodge is now 682. The members of this big lodge have been invited to visit North Haven lodge of Workmen on Thursday evening, September 19, and if all should go there will not be watermelons enough left for seed and the New Haven doctors will all be rich.

MILFORD.

Sept. 13.—Miss Florence Nettleton is suffering with a mild attack of scarlet fever.

Arthur Smith's fine residence at Wheeler's Farms has been completed. Next Tuesday evening his many friends in town will give him a house warming.

The Colored Athletic club of Milford and a similar club of Bridgeport will play ball at Athletic park next Saturday, September 21. The game is called at 2 o'clock and promises to be the liveliest game of the season.

The funeral of James Barrett, who died suddenly Tuesday, was held on Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. A delegation of twenty members of Crystal Star lodge (colored), I. O. O. F., of New Haven, attended and conducted the services at the grave.

Mr. and Mrs. Caleb T. Merwin are visiting friends in Louisville, Ky.

Mrs. Mary Harris has bought the Thrift Store property on West Main street.

THE GOLD MOVEMENT.

DEPOSITS BY BANKS FOLLOWING LARGE WITHDRAWALS.

Explanations of a Shipment by Lazard Freres, Members of the Bond Syndicate.

New York, Sept. 13.—Nearly, if not quite, $5,000,000 in gold will be exported to-morrow. Up to noon to-day $3,500,000 was taken, and $1,000,000 more had been engaged.

The chief significance in the shipments was not so much in the amount as in the fact that Lazard Freres appeared to-day for the first time as shippers of gold since the Belmont-Morgan syndicate began its operations in connection with the financing of the treasury. They took $2,500,000 gold this morning from the sub-treasury. As they, at any rate, have always been considered members of the Belmont-Morgan syndicate, the fact that they took gold to-day from the treasury for export caused considerable surprise and it was quickly inferred that the syndicate had practically concluded its operations, or, at any rate, that they had released their members from restrictions which impliedly prevented them from taking gold of the sub-treasury so long as they could effect their sales of exchange in some other way. Other reasons were adduced in financial circles, one of which was that Lazard Freres were shipping the gold with the approval of the managers of the syndicate in order to prevent exports by W. H. Crossman & Bro. and others not regularly engaged in the exchange business.

Messrs. Lazard Freres were overwhelmed with inquiries as to the cause of their suddenly drawing gold from the treasury. They declined to make any statement, but permitted reporters to read but not copy a statement of their reasons. The statement was as follows:

Hoping that bills of exchange against merchandise exports would come in the market in fair amount during the first half of September, we continued for a long time to supply our customers with bills of exchange for which we could not at the time find cover. A combination of circumstances leaves the market bare of commercial bills and makes necessary the shipment of gold to cover part of the accumulated indebtedness and to continue supplying the daily demands of the trade.

The reasons for these conditions are in part the late cotton crop and the slow movement thereof caused by Europe holding large quantities of cotton at cheap prices, and its indisposition to buy freely at quotations now ruling. Further reasons are the poor demand for our wheat and the low prices it brings, and the cheapness of money at this center, which makes it undesirable for European bankers to increase their loanable funds here.

In reply to questions, a member of the firm of Lazard Freres, while declining to make a statement, said he desired the reporters to state that there was no special significance in the shipment of gold, but that it had to go to meet a temporary emergency, and that with the moving of the cotton crop in a few weeks the whole difficulty would adjust itself.

Other shipments to-morrow and the amounts to be shipped by them in addition to the shipment by Lazard Freres are as follows: W. H. Crossman & Bro., $1,000,000; Hosker, Wood & Co., $500,000; Hard & Rand $200,000; Nesslage & Fuller $100,000; and Handy & Harman $200,000. The last mentioned amount will not be taken from the sub-treasury.

To-day's withdrawals reduced the treasury gold reserve to $95,000,000.

This afternoon some of the banks rallied to the support of the treasury and deposited gold in exchange for greenbacks. The first one to do this was the Hanover National bank, which put in $500,000. That made $3,500,000 of gold that the Hanover bank has paid in.

President Howard said, since the last loan was made. The American Exchange National bank also paid into the treasury this afternoon $200,000, and the National Bank of Commerce followed suit with another $200,000. With reference to this last mentioned deposit, President Sherman said that the $200,000 represented one-third of his bank's gold holdings, and that if all the banks contributed gold in the same proportion, there would be no further difficulty. It was rumored that the banks would turn into the treasury this afternoon at least $5,000,000 of gold, and the stock market, which had become weak on the announcement of the large withdrawals, rallied on the report. It was not considered likely in banking circles that so much gold could be turned into the treasury to-day, but it was believed that enough to maintain the reserve at $100,000,000 would be turned in during the next few days. It was expected that the National City bank would deposit at least $1,000,000 in gold in the sub-treasury this afternoon.

Referring to the export of gold by Lazard Freres, it was stated by a member of the Belmont-Morgan syndicate this afternoon that the facts were very simple. The syndicate was unable any longer to supply foreign exchange drawers, members of the syndicate with sixty-day or other bills to cover the eight drafts they had drawn, and that, therefore, those bankers were compelled to ship gold. This they did of course with the concurrence of the managers of the syndicate. Other bankers who have drawn exchange and relied on the syndicate managers to supply them with bills to cover are in the same position as Lazard Freres, but they will not ship gold this week. It is said to be probable that by arrangement with the syndicate sufficient gold will be shipped each week by one firm to cover the needs of all the exchange bankers in the syndicate. It does not necessarily follow that the same firm of bankers will make all the shipments; the work will probably be divided, the several firms shipping alternately.

J. Pierpont Morgan said to-day: "The bond syndicate is still in the field. There has been no rupture. The syndicate will continue to do all that it can to help maintain the treasury gold reserve at the $100,000,000. The obligations of the syndicate expired, however, some time ago." Mr. Morgan expressed surprise at the slow movement of the cotton crop and the present scarcity of the bills against breadstuffs. He said that undoubtedly the offerings of these bills would be daily increased in the next few weeks and thus a safeguard against exports be had.

The president of a large down-town bank, which is an influential member of the bond syndicate, also denied the reports that the syndicate had abandoned its efforts to maintain the treasury gold at the $100,000,000 point. He said that the syndicate was still accumulating gold as fast as possible, and that this gold, as soon as collected, would be turned over to the treasury.
